AOA (angle-of-arrival) systems require only two base stations. An ambiguous case arises, however, when the two base stations and the mobile phone form a straight line. Relative signal-strength measurements can aid the ranging calculation.